Re: Application for the [Job Title] position at [Company Name]

Dear Hiring Manager,

I'm writing to apply for the [Job Title] position at [Company Name]. I have a Business degree majoring in Marketing, and hands-on commercial experience from a Sales Support Coordinator role at Scholastic Australia, where I worked directly on retail sell-in for major accounts and delivered a fan-engagement campaign for a major book launch.

What sets me apart is that I also taught myself to code, entirely self-directed, and have since designed and shipped four production systems for Scholastic, including the platform its marketing team uses every day to build and publish campaign pages. I use AI tools like Claude daily, for content, workflow and development, which I think matters increasingly in a marketing role.

I don't have direct hands-on experience with every platform a role like this might use, but I've built a track record of learning new tools quickly and independently, and applying them under real pressure rather than in a classroom, the same way I taught myself to build and ship production software from a standing start.

I care about understanding not just what looks good, but what's actually working: tracking performance, iterating, and connecting activity back to a commercial outcome. I'd welcome the chance to bring that mindset, and a genuinely unusual skill set, to the [Job Title] role at [Company Name].

Thank you for your time and consideration. I've attached my resume for more detail, and references are available upon request.

Sincerely,

Sam Lappan
